THE NEW CABINET

President Grover Cleveland and His Chosen Counselors.

Some of Their Personal Characteristics and Good Qualities

As Described by Writers Who Know Them

CLEVELAND AND STEVENSON.

Brief biographical sketch of the President and Vice President.

Grover Cleveland was born in Caldwell, N. Y., on the 14th of March, 1837. His educational opportunities were at that time limited, and when fourteen years old he removed with his parents to Fayetteville, N. Y., where he began his career as a clerk in a store. Then came an opportunity for Grover to attend a local academy and it was here he received training that later in life led him to adopt the legal profession. Drifting westward, he became a student in a law office at Buffalo, N. Y., and in May, 1859, he was admitted to the bar. His industry and evident ability led to his appointment as assistant district attorney when only twenty-five years of age. Then followed in sequence official terms of office his election to the post of Erie county clerk in 1863, mayor of Buffalo in 1881, governor of New York in 1892, and president of the United States in 1893. He was nominated for a second term by the St. Louis convention, but was defeated by President Harrison by sixty-five electoral votes. During the earlier part of his administration...

nominated a third time in 1879 and was elected. He was a delegate to the national convention of 1884 and was appointed first assistant postmaster general by President Cleveland. At the general election of 1888 he was elected to the United States senate. He returned to Bloomington. In 1887 President Hayes appointed Mr. Stevenson a member of the board to inspect the military academy at West Point. The Illinois state convention elected him one of the delegates at large to the national convention. He was serving in that capacity when nominated for the vice presidency.

THE CABINET.

Points General about the men who will be the President's advisers.

The new cabinet is a Cleveland cabinet, and the president is responsible for every man in it. Physically it is one of the best cabinets ever known.

The combined weight of the president, the postmaster general and the secretary of the interior will be nearly one thousand pounds. Nearly every member is a lawyer by profession.

WALTER G. GREENHAM.

Of all the men in high station in the west there are none more genial, respected and approachable than Walter G. Greenham. A man of the world, he prefers the quiet of the home, where he entertains his friends, to the society of his family and does the work he cannot take the time to do in his office in the government building at St. Louis. He has the faculty of making and keeping friends at all times, and at all times when business is not occupying his mind, and yet when business demands it there is no man so honest and direct as he.

The coming hour of Mr. Cleveland's administration has been a man of action more than study, and yet he has found time for wide reading. His library at his home at No. 202 Pacific avenue, Chicago, is well stocked, although it is not a large one by the standards of the east.

He has a taste for the classics.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.
